Came into court and reported that the case of the United States against Charles L. The testimony tending to show that some seven years ago the defendant White married and took to wife one Margaret Hamilton, still living, and that during the past three years White has been living and cohabiting with his wife and one Elizabeth Ann Starkey in Salt Lake county, Elizabeth Starkey was to-day called and sworn by the Grand Jury and asked the following questions:

Q .- Are you married to C. L. White? Q .- Have you at any time within three vears last past, at the County of Salt Lake, in the Territory of Utah, gone through any marriage ceremony with Charles L. White?

ning Towards the San Francisco Branch Mint.

The San Francisco Call of Friday morning contains a sensational account of an alleged attempt to rob the United States branch mint by means of underground workings. According to this narrative, the would-be robbers attempted to gain access to the main sewer on Mission street and follow it up to the mint, where they intended to run a tunnel from the sewer, penetrate the basement wall and thus gain access to the vaults. A few months since two men rented the basement of the building at 775 Mission street, and immediately took They paid a month's rent in advance and for some time nothing was thought of the matter. At length, however, the curiosity of the neighbors was aroused by the apparent secrecy with which the newcomers conducted their business. When asked what they were doing, they said they were working on an "invention." Recently both men disappeared, leaving rent unpaid, and the door of the basement was burst open by the proprietor. It was then found that a tunnel, a foot and a hali square, had been dug under the street to a distunce of sixteen feet, in the direction of the main sewer. The Call says the case was put into the hands of a detective, but nothing further could be discovered.

been discovered in White Pine county, Nevada, in contrast with which, according to the statement of a recent visitor, the Mammoth Cave of Kentucky dwindles to the dimensions of a gopher hole. The cave is situated in Snake Valley, at the base of a lofty mountain spur known as Jeff Davis Peak. Its circumference at the entrance or mouth is 35 feet, and it is supposed to be several miles in length. So far it has been explored for a distance of only 1,500 feet from the entrance. The interior is composed of lofty galleries and chambers, some of them measuring sixty feet from floor to roof. These underground galleries are supported by columns of glittering stalactites and stalagmites. In one of these chambers was discovered a lake of pure, clear water, of apparently un-fathomable depth. Another apartment has been named the "music gallery. This chamber is hung with long stalac-tites reaching from the roof to the floor. By drawing a fragment of broken stalactite across these slender pillars a sound is produced resembling the notes produced by striking the keys of a pia each slender column struck giving forth a diffierent tone. A party is being organized in the eastern part of the State for the purpose of exploring this mighty cave throughout its entire length.
